The digital transformation of public governance in the Asia-Pacific region presents both opportunities and challenges. As governments adopt digital platforms and technologies, ensuring inclusivity and accessibility for all populations — including women, marginalized groups, and persons with disabilities — becomes increasingly vital.

- To strengthen understanding of inclusive digital governance principles.
- To promote equitable access to digital public services.
- To encourage collaboration among government, civil society, and non-state actors in shaping inclusive digital policies.

- Identify key strategies for digital inclusion.
- Explore case studies on platform governance that enhance accessibility.
- Formulate policy recommendations for inclusive and sustainable digital governance.

- Session 1: Overview of Inclusive Digital Governance in the Asia-Pacific
- Session 2: Best Practices and Challenges in Bridging the Digital Divide
- Session 3: Empowering Women and Marginalized Groups
- Session 4: Policy Dialogue and Collaborative Action Planning

Interactive online sessions, expert presentations, breakout discussions, and case-sharing from government and civil society representatives.
